ACADEMIC ADMINISTRATION

MARSHALL UNIVERSITY - Huntington, West Virginia

Honors College

- Dean of the Honors College, 12/22-present
- Interim Dean of the Honors College, 09/21-11/22

Responsibilities: Lead strategic planning, finances and budgeting, faculty and staff development, and facilities management to advance the college's mission of creating enhanced educational experiences for many of the university's most aspirational students. Report to the Provost & Senior Vice President of Academic Affairs as a full-time administrator with recurring duties for functions within the college and between the college and its institutional partners.

- Supervise a college staff consisting of the Assistant Dean, the Director of the Student Engagement and Community Outreach, the Program Manager of the Office of National Scholarships, the Honors Academic Advisor, the Honors College Office Administrator, and student assistants.

Selected Accomplishments

- Assessment & Strategic Planning:

- Led strategic revisioning and alignment of the college's mission, policies, and practices with the college's curricular learning outcomes, the university's baccalaureate degree profile, and institutional accreditation quality initiatives.
- Developed a comprehensive plan to evaluate the strength of the college's relationships with students and institutional partners through the design and implementation of scientific surveys of all incoming, continuing, and graduating students as well as all faculty teaching in Honors courses, thus allowing the college to respond proactively to emergent areas of concern and more fully achieve our mission.
- Coordinated with the Marshall University Foundation to review and update existing fund agreements to best serve the current needs of the college and its stakeholders and explore opportunities for additional endowed funds.
- Developed benchmark study of peer honors colleges and programs and success matrices for the college.
- Finalized a comprehensive strategic plan in collaboration with different institutional and community stakeholders to guide all aspects of the college's policies and practices for the next five years.

- Curricular and Co-Curricular Development:

- Enhanced academic program quality through the establishment of experiential learning focal area in the college's curriculum that greatly expands opportunities for students to flexibly complete requirements while earning valuable practical experience through collaborative and independent forms of community engagement as well as internships and creative and research projects.
- Partnered externally with the National Strategic Innovation Network (NSIN) in the Department of Defense and internally with Marshall Advanced Manufacturing Center to develop a new experiential and collaborative learning course "Design for Defense" based on NSIN's pilot Azimuth curriculum.
- Brought TEDxMarshallU (creating HON 490) into the college as an experiential and collaborative learning course while establishing a Foundation fund to support the course and annual event.
- Created HON 300 as an experiential and collaborative learning course focused on peer mentoring to support students in the college and serve the communities of which we are a part.
- Partnered with Housing and Residence Life to provide an enhanced Honors House residential living and learning community for honors students.

- Faculty Development:

- Created Honors Faculty Fellows program to support annual cohorts of faculty providing curricular and co-curricular opportunities in and through the college while providing greater funding opportunities for professional development and creating a space for cross-disciplinary and inter-college collaboration. Additionally, aligned the program to contribute to institutional accreditation quality initiatives with the Higher Learning Commission.
- Partnered with the Institute for International Education to position the college as a ongoing host to international Fulbright Faculty Development grantees (including Azerbaijan and Russia).

- Inclusive Excellence:

- Completed comprehensive study of literature in honors education and review of peer institutions to guide decisions informed by principles of inclusive excellence and linked to recruitment, admission, support, and retention of an increasingly diverse student population in the college and university.
- Aligned the focal areas of the Honors Faculty Fellows, the Honors College's second-year student, cohort-based seminars in leadership, ethics, and civic engagement, and the college's TEDxMarshallU events with the university's accreditation quality initiative themes.

- Recruitment and Admissions:

- Created new position of Director of Student Engagement and Community Outreach to assist in strategic enrollment management efforts.
- Developed a holistic admissions pathway and application review process based on a review of current literature in honors education and practices of peer institutions that allows students to apply for admission who are without the standardized test scores required for the automatic invitation.
- Designed admissions process with Information Technology and Student Financial Assistance that clarifies and simplifies steps for students and provides more opportunity for outreach to prospective students who are identified as eligible for admission based on quantitative measures.
- Collaborated with organizers of New Student Orientation and Week of Welcome at Marshall to create events for incoming and prospective Honors students.
- Established regular outreach and institutional collaboration with local high school honors programs.
- Redesigned and created all content for the college's website for enhanced user experience and simplified interface organized to highlight ongoing initiatives.

- Student Support and Retention:

- Collaborated with Student Affairs and Counseling Center to first temporarily fund and then create and secure funding for a permanent counseling position to serve the college's students.

- Established a peer-mentoring program for honors students in concert with several university partners.
- Collaborated with Marshall University Foundation and Student Financial Assistance to identify funds available to support both incoming and continuing students. Developed policies and procedures for several new scholarships and grant funding opportunities.
- Instituted a system to track student recruitment, admissions, and retention efforts by the college in order to strengthen the overall quality and impact of our touchpoints.
- Creating a named scholars program for Hedrick and Hodges scholarship recipients in the college through direct mentorship of the incoming cohorts.

Associate Dean of the Honors College, 07/18-09/21

Responsibilities: Create enhanced educational experiences for many of the university's most aspirational students by encouraging and supporting diverse faculty from across the university to experiment with and develop innovative courses and co-curricular activities for Honors students. In addition to continued teaching responsibilities in the home department (as a 1/1 load) and those within the college as faculty advisor and instructor of record in service and leadership courses, maintain an ongoing personal program of scholarly and creative activities as well as engagement in professional development. Reporting to and collaborating with the Dean of the Honors College in support of long-term strategic planning, faculty and staff development, finances and budgeting, and facilities management with recurring responsibilities for functions within the college.

- Led the Honors College Curricular and Policy Committee in a review of core curricular and policy matters.
- Led recruitment, staffing, and scheduling of faculty for interdisciplinary 400-level Honors seminars.
- Led recruitment, staffing, and scheduling of instructors for the Second-Year Seminar
- Planned the annual university-wide Honors Convocation.
- Planned the college's annual Food for Thought event in Leadership, Ethics and Civic Engagement.
- Assisted college enrollment management, including elements of recruitment, retention, diversity, and program completion.
- Supported the Outreach Coordinator for the Society of Yeager Scholars in student recruitment efforts, admissions, advising, and program seminar staffing and scheduling
- Collaborated with the Office of Housing and Residence Life to provide Honors housing and educational programming.
- Organized and conduct ongoing advising of honors students as well as incoming student advising and faculty orientation.
- Coordinated staffing of Honors sections with the First-Year Seminar (FYS 100) Director
- Coordinated staffing with Chairs for honors-designated General Education courses
- Maintained the Honors College website.
- Advised the Marshall University Honors College Student Association.
- Advised students and Faculty Mentors on the Honors Option and reviewed all proposals.

Department of Sociology and Anthropology

Director of Departmental Undergraduate Studies, 09/10-09/13 and 10/15-07/18

Responsibilities: Create outstanding educational experiences for students of the department's two distinct majors by encouraging and supporting faculty across the disciplines of anthropology and sociology to experiment with and develop innovative courses and co-curricular activities for students. In addition to full teaching responsibilities (as a 4/4 load), maintain an ongoing personal program of scholarly and creative activities as well as engagement in professional development. Reporting to and collaborating with the Chair of the Department of Sociology & Anthropology in support of student recruitment, faculty and staff development, and facilities management to advance the department's mission.

- Led the Undergraduate Curriculum Committee in the review of core curricular and policy matters.
- Organized departmental assessment for institutional research.
- Coordinated departmental major advising.
- Oversaw allocation of departmental funds for faculty and student research and travel (as accrued through online teaching).
- Developed the anthropology program's five-year reports and outlined the program's contribution to the department's niche within the university.
- Created and organized the departmentally sponsored, university-wide Works in Progress lecture series.
- Maintained the departmental website.

RESEARCH & TEACHING

My research has encompassed a number of themes, including personhood and place, migration, narrative identity and life transition, community building, and individual negotiations between demands of work, family, and self in changing social, economic, and environmental contexts. I have increasingly focused on how individual and collective health outcomes are shaped by abiotic, biotic, and cultural factors. My teaching is a direct expression of these interests and experiences where courses are designed to create a context wherein students collaboratively create personally meaningful learning experiences driven by detailed observation, careful analysis, and critical thinking.
